

The Legacy of Neal Broxmeyer 1953-1996

During his lifetime, Neal Broxmeyer's selfless dedication to the New York School of Practical Philosophy and his commitment to the Day School were inspirational. On December 15, 1997, the Board of Trustees honored Neal, a man whose love of children and Truth helped make the founding of the Philosophy Day School possible, by formally establishing The Neal Broxmeyer Scholarship Fund. A lasting testament to Neal's life and work, the Scholarship Fund is designed to provide financial assistance to students in need of tuition to attend the School.

Set in a historic brownstone on the Upper East Side, Philosophy Day School provides a rich and engaging environment that ensures academic excellence as well as the development of GOOD CHARACTER. Students practice the virtues of honesty, generosity, consideration and courage, which are integrated daily into Philosophy Day School life. Our education bestows children with a love of knowledge while simultaneously developing positive character traits that will last a lifetime.

Do Great Things

PHILOSOPHY DAY SCHOOL

Do Great Things

Philosophy Day School offers students a unique and exceptional learning experience. Since 1997, the Neal Broxmeyer Scholarship Fund has provided children from all financial backgrounds with the opportunity to be part of this special nurturing community.

The Fund supports the School's mission to foster intellectual development and build good character so students are equipped to make a real difference in the world. This charge is intensely reflective of Neal Broxmeyer's own passion for honesty and justice.

One of the driving forces in the establishment of the day school, Neal's commitment to our children is honored through this effort to ensure that no one who deeply desires a Philosophy Day education be denied it merely for financial reasons. The generous support of visionaries like you has already enabled the Scholarship Fund to make a significant impact, providing the resources for more than 25 children a year to attend the School—changing their lives and building a brighter future for all of us.

With your assistance, the Philosophy Day School can continue to do great things for all our children. Be a part of the transformational work of the Neal Broxmeyer Scholarship Fund by making a contribution.

Your support, at whatever level, is greatly appreciated.
